
Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by Yahriel - 2006/05/30 13:40

Yeah... anyone know if anyplace even MAKES Geostigma/Jenova/SHM -looking contacts? Or name any places that do custom requests...

For those of you that don't know what I'm talking about, the eyes are sort of...
(from the outside in) blue fade into green, slitted pupil.

I need them for my Kadaj...

Also... silver wigs? silver, not white. I'm not sure how getting my hair dyed silver will come out, and I suppose it's always a good idea to have a backup plan... thanks Tetsuya for making Kadaj's hair physics-friendly

=====

Contact lenses

Posted by Jillybeans - 2006/06/24 22:50

I KNOW they have them...Let's see if I can find the link. a lot of crashing is heard, along with a lot of cursing at msn and the laptop

Ack! I can't find it. But if you go into a search engine and look up color contact lenses, or wild or crazy eyes, they have them, I KNOW they do. Sorry.

=====

Wig

Posted by Jillybeans - 2006/06/24 22:56

Ooh I got the perfect site! Go to wowwigs.com they are all I use for wigs. They are pretty well priced and I got an Ayame wig there...it was the perfect color...not white...or grey, but silver, and not the cheapy silver like tinsel at christmas time either.

=====

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by Yahriel - 2006/06/26 22:01

ooo wow, thanks!

You happen to remember what the wig was called? There's like a billion here. pokes random, seemingly-relevant categories

And yay for actual silver! <3

=====

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by Jillybeans - 2006/06/27 14:36

The brand name was Sepia and the length was misty. The color was white, but the wig is NOT white...it is a light natural silver color. If I wasn't going to use it for Ayame and cut bangs into it, I would use it as a Sephiroth wig...even though it is a little short for that character.

=====

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by Starherd - 2006/07/07 21:21

"Perfect" from Sepia comes in the right color (their "white")

and could be cut and styled appropriately (you could even twist it before cutting to get the part in the right place):

<http://store.wowwigs.com/perfect1.html>

(I used one of these for a YnM Muraki wig a couple of years ago;
it came out pretty well.)

As for contacts, I'm trying these guys:

<http://www.freakyeyes.com/about.html>

EDIT: SCREW THOSE GUYS.

After two emails stating what I was after, with pictures,
the guy gets back to me with
"$900, and you'll want the regular cat-eye pupil because that's too thin." Which I only stated in both the emails I sent him. So, as they're unable to cope with, like, reading,
I tried the intimidatingly good
9mmsfx.com.

Who said, in response to this pic,
"Yeah, $270 for a pair."
They win.

Not cheap, but they look like they're possible to work with...

Hope this info helps...
-Starherd

More Wigs

Posted by halfsmile - 2006/07/16 04:31

Starherd, those are some nice links with the contacts. I wish I had the money, but then I don't believe most people remember Rock Howard's red eyes anyway. <http://www.answers.com/topic/rock-howard>

I'll make do. :P

Here are a few more wig links I've found over time. Perhaps these will help someone out there:

This is the only place I was able to find a super long blue wig I needed at one time:
www.eTFH.com

I plan to order for my Rock costume from this site. The styles look pretty natural, and are inexpensive for the most part.
<http://www.paulayoung.com>

update on silver wig and Jenova-ish contacts

Posted by Starherd - 2006/08/11 00:58

Update!

9mmSFX.com
rocks my world.
Check out my Livejournal to see why!

(Yes, I know the color/pupil isn't perfect, but it's what
I asked for, as I was all lusting after these for 9 years. XD

And I figured this was the easiest way to get as narrow a pupil as possible.
Also, contacts are displayed with a silver-white Sepia wig in style "nicole" (would cut up well for Yazoo).
There's also a 951XL Godiva at witchwigs.com that's Sephiroth-length, and good quality.)

phew Happy camper here ^_^
-Starherd

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by Sharkcowsheep - 2006/08/20 13:37

Ah-HEM! I bring goodies!

If anyone's still looking for mako eyes, there are a couple of good options on www.pimpindeals.com. Click their 'Crazy Eyes' link and check out the 3 pages of options. It's not as realistic as custom lenses would be, but their cat eyes look pretty good anyway and they have them in lots of colors including 'aqua', which is hard to find. There are also some mirror ones that look SO cool. They do non-corrective lenses only, unfortunately.

They're a British company and they ship worldwide, so if anyone has had difficulties with US companies requiring a prescription you can order from this site without one, no problems.

Best of all? Cheap. Not dirt cheap, which is probably good for something you're going to jam in your eye, but under a hundred bucks American, even with the current sucky exchange rate. Much cheaper than most custom lenses. You could use the money you save on food at the con--imagine, real nutrition!

Enjoy. :)

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by R3tt3 - 2006/09/03 20:47

These are what I used for my Mako eyes.
http://www.cosplaylab.com/proshop/images/theatrical/t115_T.jpg Available at:
<http://www.cosplaylab.com/proshop/cosmeticlens.asp>

These are dirt cheap, and while they aren't quite the right color and they don't have the cat eye pupil, I find that they give the right effect. If you don't get the really expensive custom cat eye contacts they tend to rotate and then they just look silly. Better to go simple, but effective. These are also great because they will turn the darkest of eyes into OMG GREEN.
:D

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by gugenorchide - 2006/09/15 13:29

R3tt3, I really loved the site link you posted up - it was refreshing to see new types of lenses that you can wear for cosplay. I will bear this site in mind if I want to play certain charries in a cosplay event this year or the next. :)

Re: Jenova-type contacts? & silver wig

Posted by Charisa - 2006/10/04 14:29

I am so very glad I checked this post! I've been having some issues with my costume for next year. I'm going as Iason from Ai no Kusabi and the hair's been bugging me. Damn, so many websites have okay wigs, but wow, are they expensive! Thanks for posting all those links. Yep.

And the thing about the mako eyes sucks. I mean, of course they'd be too thin. Hehe.

=====