
Help Us Celebrate Six Sexy Years! [UPDATED]

Posted by tpod - 2006/07/24 20:01

Thanks to all those who submitted their lovely artwork for the 6th year celebration. We received 27 wonderful pieces and it was very difficult to have to choose only 12 of them for the opening ceremonies presentation, but the Yaoi-Con staff persevered and now we can announce the entrants whose work will be shown as part of our 6th annual Convention Opening Ceremonies:

The entries themselves will be revealed at the ceremonies, so be sure to come!

ALL entries, including those shown in the presentation will be on display in our convention area, location to be determined.

Thank you so much to ALL the wonderful artists who contributed their time and talents to help us celebrate 6 SEXY years of sexy guys. ^__^

Ach, 18 days till the Con!

/update

EDIT: The Deadline for submissions has now been extended until September 20th!! So there's still plenty of time to participate!

We're looking for art submissions for a special presentation to be shown at Yaoi-Con's 2006 Opening Ceremonies!

The criteria:

- Artwork must feature one or more lovely men
- Artwork must have the number "6" featured prominently
- Artwork can be monochromatic/b&w or full color
- Artwork must be a minimum 10 inches wide (or 3000 pixels wide), and a minimum of 300 DPI if digital or scanned (11x8.5 inches, landscape orientation preferred)
- Artwork can be rendered in digital or traditional media (high resolution scanned/printed copies accepted)
- Artwork cannot portray any sexual act, or feature full frontal nudity. Discreetly covered genitalia is acceptable.

The staff will select what we feel are the best representations and include them in the special presentation. All submissions which fall into the above criteria will also be featured in a special display in the convention area during the con.

Yaoi-Con reserves the right to refuse submission of any work.

Please submit your entry via email to webmaster@yaoicon.com (Subject: Number 6) or via snail mail to:

Number 6
c/o Biseinen-ya
PO Box 292343
Nashville, TN 37229-2343

You may send an original or high resolution printout of your work, or a CD or disk. Digital files MUST be in TIFF or JPEG format for PC.

DEADLINE for entries is September 20, 2006.

Sorry, Yaoi-Con cannot return any submissions, so if you are sending original copies, please be aware that you will not get them back!

One submission per entrant, please.

Thanks!

This sounds like a VERY nifty art contest ^^ However...it is....well...you give us all these rullles and you don't tell us WHY you're running the contestI mean...to me...the reason behind the contest is just as important as the contest itself....if I don't know to what end my artwork is giong to be used, I can't get inspired as eassilly as if...say I was asked to draw a picture of the most beautiful guy I have ever seen for a possible cash reward.

May I ask WHY you want pictures like this? OO?

Read the first line of the announcement again. It's fairly clear. :)

And it is not a contest -- at least not one with any prizes. The ones that we pick to most suit the theme of the presentation will make it into the presentation, to be viewed by all present at the Opening Ceremonies.

And all entries that fit within the criteria as posted in the announcement will also be on display at the con.

Yeah...I just NOW realized my error~~ This is what happens when you force me to sit down all day long and do things I don't like to do...such as MATH...I go brain dead...~~ Blah....its probably all the monthly councellings I had to do that made me miss that~Falls over from blushing in embarassment too much~

Hmmm? I guess it would be considered a "Sexual Act" If two men are simply trying to jump over each other, but it looks like they're humpin (Even though one of them is still wearing pants)....right? Or if one naked man, with "Discreetly covered genitalia" is climbing all over another fully clothed man...right?

I don't want to give away the detail of my picture ~Hides it~ Cause someone might copy me! But I think I might be border line with the innocet....how shall we say it....playing that is going on in the picture....~~

Tracy--

Hey, in the criteria listed, it said:

"8.5x11 inches, landscape orientation preferred"

I am a bit confused. Wouldn't landscape oriented be 11x8.5 inches? And are you saying that you want the pieces all to be wider than they are tall? Or are you simply saying that you would like them to be sent to you in horizontal format, even if the picture itself is taller than it is wide?

I guess I am more than just a bit confused. Are you saying that if we do it in traditional media, like pen or paint, etc., that you do not want us to exceed the 8x11.5 inch size of the actual piece? Should the paper I use for my drawing not be any bigger than that? Or is that just the size you want us to shrink it to before emailing it off to you?

Also, is there a file size limit on these pieces sent online, like not to exceed a certain amount of MBs? I know that when we shrink the pic to JPG or TIFF format it will shrink and probable not exceed any KB size, but still, if there is a size limit I would like to know.

I'm sorry for being so dense. I hope you can help clear these things up for me. :)

thanks,
Min

More Questions

Posted by Fubie - 2006/08/26 20:31

And is it all right to post the finished product at the pimping station? Or would you rather us not?
Also, when you say prefer landscape..er on a scale 1-10 how much would you prefer us not to do portrait?
(I already started portrait but I suppose I can force it into landscape o_o;)

The only problem with portrait orientation is the fact that the art may be used in the special video presentation -- the art will be resized to fit what is essentially video-friendly set of dimensions.

Therefore, some of the details, because the image is resized, may be lost.

But if it's done, it's done, we'll just try to do our best to accommodate it if it's chosen for the video.

The artwork's orientation really doesn't matter for the exhibit that will be in the con area. :o)

extension

Posted by Min - 2006/08/31 14:36

I cannot say how happy I am that the deadline has been extended. I am currently sick as a dog. I can barely keep awake, and my head feels like it is full of cotton. I had already resigned myself to not being able to finish by September first, and was sad. :(

But now I am happy! :D :D :D

OK, am going to take a nap. Thank you for the extension. It's the bestest word in the whole wide world.

Extension? YEA OMG YEA!! XD Now I can fix all my horrible mistakes <3 <3 I'm so happy XD
Of course it was probably the plan all along XD Knowing us artists (I mean, at least I'm always late for a deadline..`.)
Whew, I spent hours trying to fix small mistakes (because I didn't have time to just draw it over again, I draw on the computer, so yeah it takes longer than a few hours =3) making bigger mistakes, then I had to run in the rain to the library because my internet doesn't work(and bellsouth has no clue why) only to find out it closed early on fridays, so I ran in the rain again today, this time on time, kicking myself of all the crappy mistakes I made and the line art was completely shot to hell...baah, second chance time!

If I had known there was going to be an extension...~~ I would have ordered that second can of air I needed for My air brush unit....and the background would have looked a bit better on the right hand side ~~Oh well, no use crying over spilled ink...(Unless said ink is all over the picture you're currently working on).

art question...sort of...

Posted by fynoda - 2006/09/16 00:33

I'm drawing two characters, one is clothed...and the other I'm thinking of putting up a censor bar. I'm debating because I'm not sure if the judges for this contest will think of it as a cop-out or think of it as funny.

Anyone's opinion would be appreciated^^

Again, it's not a contest, merely a presentation/display. Yes, there will be a judging as to whose are makes it into the video presentation for the Opening Ceremonies, but everyone's art should be in the static display we'll have in the con area.

And I personally <3 censor bars. Like clothing, they add to the tantalization. ^^

~Blinks at the people~ Eh, what ever....~Shrugs~ If you can't get your work done at least a MONTH in advance then there is no point in becoming a real artist. You have gotta get used to meeting tough deadlines long before the deadline dates show up....it just makes you look better. (One of the reasons I'll probably never make it...when someone tells me I have to be done by a certain date, I usually drag my feet like hell ~~ Then rush at the last moment, often pulling all nighters to get my work done....I'm such a....what's that H word...hmmm)

Re: Help Us Celebrate Six Sexy Years! [UPDATED]

Posted by Magdalena - 2006/09/30 14:13

It's not a question of getting the work done in time; the deadline's come and gone. The only thing that matters is that it was submitted.

This is just the ants-in-my-pants-oh-god-did-I-get-picked time. :)

They sent an email along a few days ago, so you should have received a response at this point. ;)

The email that was sent out was asking how you wanted to be credited, regardless of your acceptance for the presentation or not.

Again, ALL entries that fit the criteria WILL be displayed on the con area. Only a few of the entries are able to make it into the presentation due to time limitations.

We had 27 entries and out of those, the Yaoi-Con staff selected 12 for the presentation.

I will be updating my initial announcement post with those entries that should appear in the presentation.

Thanks!

Tracy
