Hey-lo

I'm in So. Cal. but I'm located in Ventura County. I have no one to talk to about Yaoi and Slash things. It's lonely.

Well hello to both of you ^^ I'm not sure Where that is in cali....is it near LA? (I'm actually closer to san Diego then LA, but I can get to both.) I'm down at the military base outside ocean Side

I'm in So-Cal (Anaheim). I must agree with JemDragon, thought...
There's no one I know who even knows what Yaoi is, let alone is into it.
It be sad.

YAY!

Posted by hibaakaiko - 2006/04/19 21:01

^^ Maybe we can all get together one one of the weekends and hang out in La...(Needs to go there anyways cause she collects COpic art markers ~~)

That sounds cool... to be quite honest, though I've lived about 1 & a half hours away from LA for my whole life and have yet to go there by myself (It'd be an interesting drive, I know that much nod nod)

Train station

Posted by hibaakaiko - 2006/04/20 06:33

Well, I don't have a car, I get there by train and then walk to Little Tokyo. If you know where little tokyo is and what's around there....we can meet at a land mark over there.

Re: San Diego/ So Cali

Posted by werekat - 2006/04/20 21:57

That'd work, 'cept the last time I was even in LA was oh...8 or 9 yrs ago...
Though I must admit, the train would be easier to use than driving for an hour in traffic.

Posted by hibaakaiko - 2006/04/21 11:04

If you can take the train down, that would be even better. We could meet in the train station and walk to Little Tokyo ^^ . It couldn't be this weekend tho....(What with it being friday already you've probably allready made plans for this weekend.) next weekend after the first payday....

Yeah, next weekend should work... so long as I can finish my projects this weekend. How much is train fare usually? is trying to save up for the con

I live in good 'ol Los Angeles! I hope I can go to Yaoi Con this years, I've never been to ANY kind of convention before, although I might get to go to Comic Con for free. Yay! Anyways, hopefully I can save up enough money to go always broke. :(

Train Fair

Posted by hibaakaiko - 2006/04/22 08:13

It depends on where you're coming from. From Ocean side up to LA its 17.50 during the off season and like 19.80 for the tourest months....~~ I'm not sure when the tourest months start, but they might have already because summer is rather close now....~~ I understand how you feel, I'm trying to save money too...not only for the con but to invest in a education program the government offers their military...~~ But...ah, oh well, I'll just use money from my last few paychecks to go. If my calculations are correct, and they are. I'll have more than enough money even before I get my seperations pay.

con expenses & stuff

Posted by werekat - 2006/04/22 20:24

I'm going to have to do that too... it's like $275 or something to fly roundtrip & have a quad room for 2 nights (I might end up going by train)... I only work like 7 hrs a week must find more hrs for summer :wink: so that's like a month & a half's pay. I'm still trying to get the folks to agree to let me go too... need someone to drive me to the airport :D . Anyway, that being said a trip into Little Tokyo sounds fun, but if we go, I need some info (a: so my mom doesn't think I'll be abducted by a 75 yr old axe murderer who escaped from a mental hospital :shock: :roll: & b: so I know who I'm talkin' to/who to look for) (name, age, height, where you're coming from... that sort of thing)

AX?

Posted by hibaakaiko - 2006/04/22 23:22

Gee, I'm flattered. You think I'm a 75 year old ax murdertype person...hell. That'd make my stay in the Military easier....being the crazy ones are always the ones that serve in the marines....

You forgot to mention that you were hot, had really soft lips and fair skin, and are just begging to be kissed... even if you're simply sitting down and reading a book with your glasses on. ;) I think that I remember shutting you up once or twice by kissing you, actually... that was funny. evil grin Best of all, you seemed to keep talking right afterwards... "forcing" me to repeat the process again... ;)

Yay, other Y-con goers in San Diego!

I work and live in San Diego, but I'm usually not in town on weekends. Probably a good half of my weekends are spent in Camarillo, a third in SD, and the rest somewhere else in the state of CA. I am interested in spending more time in SD, trying to get involved in the local fan clubs.

Hello everyone, I'm another San Diego fan, actually I'm more into Yuri if thats okay.

I live in work in San Diego (for a well known anime company) and looking forward to going to YaoiCon for the first time, so tell me whats it like? I've worked conventions such as AX and SDCC, love the cosplayers but must be crazier in SF?

I live in San Diego as well, East County to be exact. I don't know if you guys know this, but we have an anime club here, it's a great group of people. Not many yaoi fans...in fact, it's pretty much just me, lol. Either way, it's not a bad club at all. If you're interested go here...

<http://sdanimanga.net>

The forums aren't that active yet, since the old forums are still available, and the move of the site isn't completely finished. But don't let that fool you, we're an active club that talks about tons of different things. So come join, I'm tired of being in the minority, lol.

I'm in SoCal, but in LA area not San Diego area. I work in downtown not far from Little Tokyo (although I never seem to make it to visit there even though it's so close)

If there is a get-together to go, please post a day and time and I'll try to be there too.
