SO LONG AND THANKS FOR ALL THE BISH HAIL AND FAREWELL

It took all year to plan and was gone in only three days, but that didn't make Yaoi-Con 2006 any less memorable. Our thanks goes out to our fellow fans whose enthusiasm and camaraderie made this show a fun, fantastic success! A hearty thank you as well to our staff, volunteers, dealers and guests, without whom none of this would be possible.

Of course, anything worth doing is worth doing well -â€" which is why we hope you'll take a moment to fill out our Yaoi-Con 2006 Feedback Survey. Let us know where we did good and how we could've done better so we can make next year's convention a better experience for everyone!

sigh yaoi con just seems to get better and better each year. . .the biggest problem I encountered, though, as I'm sure most will agree with me: the verbal harrassment we received from the volunteers while being ushered into the auction. To me, it seems the whole problem stemmed from just having WAY too many people trying to get into one space and my suggestion is that if there are more people registering for next year than there was this time, we're gonna have to find a bigger hotel. .

You know, I think I somehow missed all this abuse. I mean, I was there. Volunteering. I think I must have been counting AMV ballots or something. Anyway. Sorry if a short blonde in striped socks and a green ribbon hurt your feelings or made you feel uncomfortable (seriously- I know this can come of as flippant without tone.) But your welcome for everything else volunteers and staff do...

Naw, don't worry. Personally my feelings weren't hurt, I kind of knew why the volunteers were going through and why they had to do some of those things. . it was a madhouse. .so many people. . and must have been all they could do to prevent total chaos from happening.
