I am always up for karaoke. I didn't even know the con had it! In that case, yes please!

Or if not, we could always get a group together to go out, but that means leaving the hotel. >.< And finding one's way around SF. . . .

I'd do it. :D

I am hoping I will be able to go to yaoi-con 07, it'll be the first convention I go to if so. And since I was born in a family with a dad who likes to karaoke, then I think this would be fun to see at my first con. I can't guarantee I'd get up and sing, but I'd at least be there to cheer for those brave enough. Of course, if it does get added, and I do in fact attend the con, and lastly if I get up the nerve to go in front of people, I already have a song I'd sing. :twisted:

Re: 2007 Karaoke?

Posted by Neko_Bazu - 2006/12/02 09:18

I can't help but think that, with the already-packed schedule, it might end up 'competing' with one of the other big events, which I wouldn't really like to see. That said, if it can find its own slot, I'd sure as hell like to see/hear it! (Would I sing? Well, if you want to use the term loosely...)

Re: 2007 Karaoke?

It seems to me like it would be great as a late-night event. What we need is a traditional-styled karaoke bar in San Francisco (with the private rooms and everything) to make it a sort of private fun event or something (yay for 21+ers and alcohol, or something o_O) with or without karaoke, if I make it to the con, I am gonna walk around singin. :twisted:

Re: 2007 Karaoke?

Posted by GeneralReku - 2007/02/14 17:33

I'd join in. 2007 shall be my first convention ever. Yaoi or not. o.o So, I might need a helpful hand if I pop up. I'll look forward to the fun. However, I'll be 19, so if it's alcohol induced singing I'll have to just pout outside.

I'm also with, Helc. xD I sing nearly 24/7. Usually only Voltaire or Aqua though. What a bad mix!

XP Eh, speaking of heroes, "I Need A Hero" by Bonnie Tyler, but later sung in Shrek 2 by Jennifer Saunders (the Fairy Godmother; end of the movie) and by Frou Frou (first song in the credits), is and is my number one song to sing! You've all been warned! :twisted:

One more warning, my number two song to sing is "Killing Me Softly" :twisted:

I assume that's the Fugees version, as oppose dto... i think Bob Marley did it first?

I like singing, but I'm normally shy about doing it publicly. It doesn't help that most of the songs I can sing vaguely well (I have a very limited vocal style) aren't very well known!

That said, karaoke would still be pretty cool ^_^ I did 'New York New York' at a friend's birthday, so if all else fails...

Yup, the Fugees version. :twisted:

Eh, I used to be really shy too, and I never sung in public. But one day I just decided to stop being shy. It was the best thing I've ever done.

If any Karaoke doesn't have "When You're Evil," I'll cry (and sing "I will Survive" instead >_<).

Voltaire's actually in town here next week and it's only a five-dollar show. I wish I could go! ;_;

I was wondering about karaoke last year. I am totally up for it. I would love to sing some Kinki kids. I would even host or help host it if it is at the hotel (though I can't provide the stuff because I am flying in). I think a late night event would be perfect that way it would only compete with the video rooms.

After that, we'll see about a contest. :D

Christ, don't I know it. But therein lies the amusement. At least for those watching.

I would have offered an enkooff challenge, too, but I don't know if anyone else out here sings enka, and it's not as yaoicon related, so. . . . But I can still dream.

My range is significantly higher than Gackt's so I can hit pretty much all of his parts. Naturally, though, I'm not a tenth as good in style.

My vibrato is very good, but I don't think that I could handle Enka unless very, very smashed. >_>

Yay, Kiyoshi! :D That works. I think even with some of the crossover stuff he's been doing lately, he still hasn't changed that much. I dabble in a little of him myself, or at least "in the style of" Kiyoshi. . . .

And vibrato? Come on, that's half the battle right there! Plus it's gotta stand for something that we know it at all. . . .

Eh, if all goes well, I will be at the con... and I will be singing (though probably not karaoke), but, in any case, I could loan my karaoke machine to the con. It's small, two microphone (incase you want to do a duet), and has built in camera, so you can be on TV while you sing. :twisted:

Unless someone was planning on goin' with the high-tech, genuine, karaoke bar set-up.

What are the capabilities of this Karaoke machine? Is it its own player? Does it only take Karaoke discs? Can it plug into a larger speaker system?

Re: 2007 Karaoke?

It has it's own player, so far as I know it can play both Karaoke and non-karaoke CDs (not sure about homemade/burnt CDs), and it's got the normal AV output to connect to a TV (necessary to see the lyrics and camera). Then you could hook the TV up to a bigger sound system.

Hmmm.... It'd probably be better to use a computer-based system, if only for the problem that even burning as many CDs as we need would be a horrendous amount of work.

Oh, I'd so visit the karaoke. I wouldn't sing, but I visited a karaoke showing at MTAC 2006 and I loved it, espically when that lady got up there and sung Black Velvet. omg, that was awesome. The only problem I noted was that there was no mention of a karaoke event on the schedual, so by the time I found it, there was just 30mins left.

And something I noticed about last years Y-con, there wasn't really anything to do on Friday (the cons that I have went to in the past had everything planed on Fri and Sat while nothing of intrest was on Sun, but Y-con was diffrent), so perhaps it could be schedual for then, like maybe an all night thing.

And registration and opening ceremonies!

I don't know about other cons, but YCon certainly seems to leave official opening too late to really fit much else in on the Friday - which suits me nicely, since I'll be using that time to recover from my flights!
