

---

Underarm odor problem!

Posted by sinrella - 2007/12/20 04:17

---

Hi all,
I am 22 years college girl and living in hostel. I have problems with underarm odor and the only remedy is taking a shower with good water pressure. Is there any another option that can be removed my underarms odor? Your advice will be highly appreciated.

=====

Re: Underarm odor problem!

Posted by BunofGovt - 2007/12/20 19:54

---

Can you use underarm deoderant? If you have sensitive skin, there are several brands that are hypoallergenic, or for sensitive skin. Some are scented, but some are not and still mask your body odor.

You may need to change your eating habits, some foods with strong odors might cause your body to smell (I have that problem after eating a lot of garlic).

Is this from sweating a lot? If you are not active, but still warm or get overheated, try wearing silk or cotton so your skin breathes.

I'm starting to ramble, sorry.

If you have, um, extra hair in your armpits, have you tried shaving? It might be that the hair causes more odor.

=====

Re: Underarm odor problem!

Posted by Neko_Bazu - 2007/12/21 03:16

---

On the deoderant front, try using a roll-on or stick instead of a spray, if you haven't already - they're generally better for that sort of thing.

=====

Re:Underarm odor problem!

Posted by watinggirl - 2007/12/21 04:21

---

Hey, now this time the thousand of women are using mystique feminine wipes for unwanted odors. I also use it so I would recommend you for this wipe. It instantly clean and neutralize unwanted odors. Hope this will work out for you. See you, bye!

=====

Re: Underarm odor problem!

Posted by BunofGovt - 2007/12/21 20:26

---

mystique feminine wipes? I haven't seen those in any store here. (Are you in the UK?)

We should soooo have those to pass out to con attendees ... :P

=====

Re: Underarm odor problem!

Posted by Neko_Bazu - 2007/12/22 03:07

---

This thread sounds like a really dodgy advert now... XD

---

Girl A: I'm having real underarm odour problems!

Girl B: Try Mystique Feminine Wipes - thousands of other women approve!

Doesn't help that those are the only posts either poster has made, and they both signed up within a day of each other too ^^;

...I've seen right through the pair of you! >D

Edit: And on that note, the website linked to sounds like a bad cable TV ad too, and we've got someone from the UK 'advertising' a small-niche US-based product. That just makes it even more suspicious ^^;

=====

Re: Underarm odor problem!

Posted by njd - 2007/12/27 19:13

---

hmmm...i have to second that. it's certainly related to shopping though...but not the kind i think most people looking around here are interested in...if you know what i mean...

~_^

=====