
Yaoui-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by KopiNinja - 2007/12/26 14:07

Ok, I am so mad at myself for not making the time to find the bishi dressed as Roy and asking him where he got his uniform or how he made it. Roy! If you are out there and listening, PLEASE help me out.... I LOVED your uniform and would really like to mimick it for my own... If anyone else knows anything about his particular state uniform, please help! Thank you, thank you!

And how's that for a long subject line... o.O

Re: Yaoui-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by Gothkitti - 2007/12/28 06:52

I'm pretty sure that he made it himself, but I shall contact him and make him aware of your thread, just in case. ^_^

Re: Yaoui-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by J_Chen - 2007/12/30 15:20

Yep, he made it himself. His UN is Xgouki in the forum, I am pretty sure you could ask him yourself.

Hohoho...another Roy Mustang for me to belittle...XD

Re: Yaoui-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by Xgouki - 2008/01/04 16:55

peers in

Did someone call? :wink:

To answer your question, yes I made the entire cosplay (except the pants, boots, and dress shirt) myself. The cosplay was designed from scratch by analyzing the proportions from the TV series (what? it was 2 engineers in college working on it. You should have seen the board of calculations as my friend tried to figure out a french curve for the sleeve top :P). As such I really can't give you any pattern names or numbers to base yours off of. However, I might be able to dig out the patterns and take pictures to give you can idea of how to make it.

Some of the concepts to defy physics like many cosplays tend to do took us a while to figure out (like the tall, open collar that somehow remained almost closed in the front with NO clasp). Oh, and if you compared the cosplay I made to some others, you'll notice that I made it out of a heavier material and darker in color. The reason behind that is because I proposed that we make it like a real military outfit. Class A formal uniforms are thicker and darker than the standard Class B's (I was in JROTC for 4 years) and it turned out pretty well using that fact.

If you are still interested, feel free to post here or PM me.

PS. Wh-what is that about J-Chan? You don't love me anymore? :cry:

Re: Yaoui-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by Neko_Bazu - 2008/01/05 15:40

The cosplay was designed from scratch by analyzing the proportions from the TV series (what? it was 2 engineers in college working on it. You should have seen the board of calculations as my friend tried to figure out a french curve for the sleeve top :P)

I can appreciate that entirely! :D You should've seen the notes and doodles I came up with trying to design the bracers for my Konoe cosplay!

=====

Re: Yaoi-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by bento_box_boy - 2008/01/06 05:10

O.o...you guys graph this out?!

I just throw crap together I think looks sexy and pray to every holy deity I can think of that it is >.<

=====

Re: Yaoi-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by Neko_Bazu - 2008/01/06 12:32

O.o...you guys graph this out?!

I just throw crap together I think looks sexy and pray to every holy deity I can think of that it is >.<

Well, certain cosplays demand an arse-load of effort, else they end up just failing.

Take Konoe as an example - by the looks of things, those bracers are made of either formed leather or sculpted plastic; absolutely body-hugging, but open on one side, so it's hardly an elastic effect doing it. I lack the means (or money) to do either of those, so I had to work out a way to make cotton basically defy gravity no matter which way I positioned my arm - ditto Roy's collar, as mentioned.

Besides which, it's what engineers do :P

=====

Re: Yaoi-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by Gothkitti - 2008/01/07 20:17

Litarature people do too!! >_>

But, then, I was the lit person who helped the other lit people with their math homework.

From another stance, also, whenever I make any prop, I -always- do the math of what angles I need, volume, etc. (I don't sew as much, but if I could sew well, I'd do it then too!). Not only does it have the effect of making your props sturdier and better-looking, but it can also save you work in the long-run.

=====

Re: Yaoi-con 07 Bishi Roy Mustang and his Amazing Uniform!

Posted by J_Chen - 2008/01/08 15:42

PS. Wh-what is that about J-Chan? You don't love me anymore? :cry:

Don't worry surgar-bum, you are still my favorite! :wink:

=====