
Lonely Room Seeking Mates

Posted by Kuri - 2008/05/30 18:42

My twin sister and I have a have a triple/quad with some room to share. As we are more than accustomed to sharing sleep space, and firm believers of 'waste not, want not,' we offer up our accomodations to qualified applicants.

Straight girls or gay boys only please. It's for your virture's sake.(Nee-san is not to be trusted.:P)

Hiya, I'm interested in a space! Could you tell me how much it is, and when it's available?

We have an early check-in scheduled for friday (7-7:30 a.m. depending on when our flight gets in), and will be checking-out on monday.

The cost would be divided more or less evenly between the occupants, ie if someone ended up needing to sleep on the air mattress or such they would pay a reduced share. As it stands, if you were to join sis and I, the cost would be 154.26 per person including tax.

If you're still interested, please shoot me an email at underground.panique@gmail.com. Be sure to include a little bit about yourself (age, gender, maybe and interest or two, the standard "I'm not a internet psycho!" information). Cheers!

We certainly still need folks. We're staying at the Mariott. If it were the four of us the rate would be $117 per person for the three nights. We're also courting one other potential possibility that would bring the rate down to $95 per person.

If you'd like to talk further send an email to underground.panique@gmail.com. We'll get some information exchanged and I'll send you our code of contact (nothing serious just some basics like our drug and red scarf policies).
